First Health Strategies

This project made possible by our sponsors:

For 50 years, Greenebaum Doll & McDonald has distinguished itself as a progressive business law firm committed to the practice of breakthrough law, and is a recognized leader in health care law. Its attorneys counsel the full spectrum of health care businesses – providers and insurers – in virtually all areas of health care law, including HIPAA, fraud and abuse compliance, litigation and alternative dispute resolution, elder care issues, licensure, regulatory interpretation and medical malpractice. Greenebaum also counsels health care clients on corporate, finance, securities, transactional and ongoing operational matters.

Greenebaum's 180 attorneys provide incisive counsel in dozens of practice areas to virtually all industries, from offices in Kentucky, Ohio, Tennessee and the District of Columbia.

Health-related businesses have been a major component of Greater Louisville's economy for many years. These ventures take many forms, from hospitals and other health care providers to medical device manufacturers. This visual history of Louisville's health-related businesses is meant to celebrate our history of excellence, innovation and entrepreneurship and further our mission of fostering the growth of the region's health-related economy.

This list is a work in progress. The Health Enterprises Network consulted with nearly 100 business and community leaders during the first half of 2002 to develop this document. We have included all health-related companies founded in the Louisville area that have been brought to our attention, regardless of their current location and whether they are still operating. The relationships among companies are reflected in the color-coded key to the left of the tree. A related company is a company that funded or spun-off the new company or whose former employees occupy key positions in the new firm.

Louisville's health-related economy has thrived for several decades and truly is a robust business ecosystem. Companies are only one part of that ecosystem. We plan to publish a business guide to Louisville's service providers, consultants, agents, manufacturers representatives, venture capital sources, banks and government / non-profit support entities. Please contact us at (502) 625-0059 or TMcMahon@GreaterLouisville.com if we can add your company's name to the 2003 edition of this poster or our 2003 Business Guide.

Ernst & Young is the leading provider of professional services to the health sciences industry. With over 30 full time Kentucky professionals serving our health care clients, Ernst & Young helps clients quickly and confidently make financial decisions.
