The missing piece of the HR puzzle.

INTEGRATED HEALTH MANAGEMENT.

It's the key to employee productivity.

And to lower health costs, too.

Because, analyzing health and financial data in one integrated process is the only way employers and employees can make spending decisions based on actual outcomes – outcomes that will benefit them both.

Until recently, no one's been able to do that. But now they can.

If you'd like to learn how, just give us a call at 1-888-421-SHPS (7477).

We'll be happy to provide the missing piece of the puzzle.

LOUISVILLE'S HEALTH-RELATED ECONOMY: AN OVERVIEW

When health-related businesses start up in the Louisville area, move here or grow here, they join a wider landscape of creation and growth that reaches far across the local economy. Healthcare is big business in Louisville, and getting bigger.

The local health-related industry employs 72,000 workers who draw an annual payroll of $2.3 billion. Eight of the top 20 employers in the metropolitan area are health-related businesses. Of eight Fortune 500 companies in Kentucky, three are in healthcare – and two are headquartered in Louisville, Kindred Healthcare and Humana.

The area's health-related activity ranges from research on the leading edge of medical technology, to entrepreneurial efforts to bring the fruits of this research to the marketplace, to large, long-established companies with national and international reach. There are service companies, national staffing firms, software companies, medical equipment firms and life sciences companies.

Many of these businesses benefit from another major feature of the Louisville economy – its logistics industry. The city is centrally located – nearly half the nation's population lies within a 500-mile radius – and its transportation connections are excellent. It has major rail service, sits on a major commercial waterway, the Ohio River, is at the intersection of three north-south and east-west interstates, and is the home of United Parcel Service's international hub, an express-service facility that can sort more than 300,000 items an hour. To complement these connections, the city has facilities that meet federal standards for the storage and shipping of biological products, pharmaceuticals and medical devices.

This means the area's businesses have an ability to ship goods in and out that is almost unrivaled in the United States. Among the nation's 328 largest cities, Louisville ranks Number Two as a transportation and distribution center. MedVenture Technology Corporation, Louisville's largest medical device manufacturer with over 60 employees, can offer related benefits to its customers. They can produce devices on a second shift ending as late as midnight, and ship from the UPS air hub with arrival by 8:30 a.m. in any city served by UPS Air Line.

SUMMARY OF THE HEALTH ENTERPRISES NETWORK

VISION, MISSION AND KEY STRATEGIES

The Health Enterprises Network is an affiliate of Greater Louisville Inc., and is charged with promoting the growth of the region's health-related economy. It assembles data on the community's health-related activities and their economic impact, provides networking opportunities for health-related executives, entrepreneurs and venture capital investors, develops economic growth strategies and is an advocate for the health-related industry's needs.

Our vision is for the region to be globally recognized as a "location of choice" for health-related businesses, researchers, educators, investors and consumers. Our mission is to champion and foster the growth of the region's health-related economy.

Specific activities of the Network include promotion of a white paper urging legislative action to increase funding for university research programs, improve funding mechanisms for Medicaid and curb growing medical liability costs. Also, it sponsors three public meetings per year for the local health-related business community that each attract more than 250 people. These activities are carried out in pursuit of our six key strategies, which include:

- To Establish Knowledge Networking Capabilities for Health-Related Enterprises
- To Collect and Disseminate Data on the Health-Related Economy
- To Develop a Promotional/Marketing Plan that Aligns the Region with the Health Enterprises Network Visioning Statement
- To Improve Access to Capital
- To Increase and Improve Human Capital Available to Health-Related Companies
- To Create a World-Class Infrastructure for Health-Related Enterprises

COMMITTEES OF THE HEALTH ENTERPRISES NETWORK

ECONOMIC RESEARCH & DATA COLLECTION COMMITTEE

Suggests and prioritizes research projects and helps establish criteria for studies and reports. Their most recent efforts resulted in our report "Health-Related Patents in the Louisville Area: 1996 – 2002." They also assisted with the 2000 Health Economy Research Report by Dr. Paul Coomes and other projects. All research is aimed at economic development initiatives defined by our Board of Directors that correlate with our 2000 Visioning Report. Chair – Chris Corrie, Partner, PWC.

INVESTOR GROUP

This is a networking group for angel, seed and early stage investors. Our goal (defined by our 2000 Visioning Report) is to attract $250 million in additional equity and debt-related capital in the Louisville area. Over time, the committee will also work to help develop sources of financing for maturing health industry businesses, especially in the merger and acquisition / buy-out areas and to educate banks as to the capital needs of the local health-related industry. Chair, Rob Hawkins.

GOVERNMENT AFFAIRS COMMITTEE

Establishes and champions a legislative agenda for the Network. This includes development of a "White Paper" outlining the issues supported by the Network as well as an annual event to help establish connections among Network members and legislators. The White Paper is redrafted annually and focuses on issues that impact health-related economic development (e.g., the endowment match fund, a.k.a., bucks for brains, health-related worker retraining and legislation that may assist life science and healthcare companies). Chair – Mark Rothstein, Director, Institute for Bioethics, Health Policy and Law at the University of Louisville.

HUMAN CAPITAL COMMITTEE

Assesses the human resource needs of Louisville's health-related economy and creates strategies to address those needs. The committee also serves as a clearinghouse for programs and activities that offer solutions in the areas of health-related employee recruitment, retention and training. The committee will have representation from complementary organizations in order to minimize duplication of efforts throughout Louisville. Past initiatives they have assisted with include the H1-B Worker Training Grant from the Department of Labor and the GreaterLouisvilleWorks.com web site. Chair – Jan Gordon, Executive Director, Spencerian College.

HOW TO BECOME A MEMBER

In addition to contributing to the success of our region's health-related economy, membership with the Health Enterprises Network delivers direct benefits including:

- Access to local industry data & publications
- Quarterly communications on key industry news
- Advance notification and members-only discounts for events
- Recognition on our web site and by others as a supporter of the health-related industry
- Inclusion in the feature section of this Guide to Health-Related Business

For more information, or to join the Health Enterprises Network, please call 502-625-0179
or see our web site at:
www.HealthEnterprisesNetwork.com

THE GUIDE

CRITERIA FOR INCLUSION

To be included in the Guide to Health-Related Businesses a company must be doing business in the health care industry in Louisville. It is not required that a company be engaged only in the business of health care, but it must derive a substantial portion of its business from the industry. Also, the company must have a physical presence in Louisville's 24-county economic area. At a minimum, the company must have an office in the region (home-based operations can count as a local office, such as a group of sales professionals working from home for a national pharmaceutical company). The 24-county economic area surrounding Louisville, defined by the U.S. Census Bureau, includes the following counties:

Breckinridge, KY	Jefferson, KY
Bullitt, KY	Marion, KY
Carroll, KY	Meade, KY
Clark, IN	Nelson, KY
Crawford, IN	Oldham, KY
Floyd, IN	Orange, IN
Grayson, KY	Scott, IN
Hardin, KY	Shelby, KY
Henry, KY	Simpson, KY
Larue, KY	Trimble, KY
Harrison, IN	Washington, IN
Jefferson, IN	Washington, KY

Our final criterion for inclusion is whether the company could be easily found in another directory or guide. All members of the Health Enterprises Network are included in the guide, regardless of any other criteria, but we have chosen to exclude others who can be easily found in other guides. Examples include the nearly 1,500 individual facilities (such as hospitals, nursing homes, physical therapy clinics, etc. whose parent company is likely already listed) and physician, dental and chiropractic practices.

Because these are critical components of the health industry in any city, all are easily found in guides published by the Kentucky Hospital Association (kyha.com), The Luken Group's Guide to Nursing Home Facilities (lukenassociates.com), Jefferson County Medical Society (jcms.org), Kentucky Dental Association, Kentucky Association of Chiropractors, Cabinet for Health and Family Services in Kentucky (especially their Certificate of Need office), Kentucky Board of Medical Licensure, Indiana Health Professions Bureau and the Indiana Department of Health.

HOW THE GUIDE IS ORGANIZED

1. Introduction
2. Profiles of all Health Enterprises Network Members
3. An index listing all health-related companies in the 24 county region, including all members and non-members of the Health Enterprises Network. This section is alphabetized and organized by the industry sectors defined on the following page and based on the criteria for inclusion on this page.
